Comment Of The Day

THE CHINESE UNIVERSITY

THE news which Mr Crozier, the Director of Education, gave to a press conference on Tuesday about a second university, will be widely welcomed in the Chinese community. For it means that the Colony will now have a university in which Chinese will be the principal medium of instruction.

It will mean, moreover, that education in Hongkong will become very much more independent and self-contained, that Chinese students who feel unable to pursue their studies in English at the existing University, will be able to graduate locally in their own language with a recognised degree.

It is distressing enough to see year after year the large numbers of students who partly through inability to find places in the Hongkong University go to England, Canada, America, Australia, Formosa and Japan. The existence of extremely efficient post-secondary schools has made little difference to this annual exodus but with a university status they will become a very much more attractive prospect.

A Delay

FOR years now local educationalists have been wrestling with the problem of these schools. The chief concern has been to work them into the existing educational structure of the Colony without destroying their identity or character. And it looks as if a solution is now in sight satisfactory to all concerned.

It is naturally disappointing that there is no likelihood of setting up a commission to examine the standards of the post-secondary colleges before two or three years. Now that solution is in the offing, those sponsoring their advancement will want the new university to come into being as quickly as possible.

Government has promised financial aid to help the colleges achieve the higher standards necessary to qualify for the new status and it is to be hoped that the University will also give them every assistance. Mr Crozier is right to emphasise that once even one of the colleges achieves the required proficiency, the university will be brought into being. This means that others can become associated with it as they graduate.

The Commission

IT is perhaps auspicious that these colleges, transferred here after the fall of the mainland, should have been given this encouragement during the World Refugee Year. Friends and associates in America would do well to consider how they can offer specialised assistance. Meanwhile those responsible for working out this solution deserve the community's congratulations and the Colony looks forward to an early announcement on the appointment of a commission. Anything that can be done to expedite its inquiries will undoubtedly be appreciated by students and colleges alike.

ADENAUER'S SHOCK DECISION

Wants To Remain Head Of West Germany

Bonn, June 4.

Dr. Konrad Adenauer dropped another political bombshell tonight by deciding that he was not going to stand for President next month. He wants to remain Chancellor of West Germany.

PIERRE BALMAIN LEAVES

BALMAIN

Before leaving Hongkong today Pierre Balmain, leading Paris fashion expert, was reminded of a report from Esterior earlier this year which said he playfully bit Mrs Spencer Churchill at a ball.

He smiled and said: "It was a carnival and maybe I was carried away."

M. Balmain, world-famous French dictator of ladies' fashions, left by Air Vietnam this morning after a short stay in Hongkong.

He is on his way to Europe via Saigon and Bangkok.

M. Balmain arrived here from Sydney on Wednesday after opening a Pierre Balmain Salon in David Jones there.

He was seen off at the airport by Mr. M. H. C. Dyer, his buying agent in Hongkong.

It is naturally disappointing that there is no likelihood of setting up a commission to examine the standards of the post-secondary colleges before two or three years. Now that solution is in the offing, those sponsoring their advancement will want the new university to come into being as quickly as possible.

East German Delegation To Visit Russia

An East German delegation headed by Communist leader Walter Ulbricht will visit the Soviet Union on Monday.

GEOLOGIST'S PAINTING SETS OFF WORD WAR

Canberra, June 4. A geologist who hung a print of nudes on the wall of his hotel bedroom said today he would defy the efforts of the hotel manager and other people to make him remove it.

The geologist, Dr H. T. P. Hyde, described the demand for the removal of the print. "The Court" by Norman Lindsay, as "frivolous and absurd."

The print depicts a group of nude women standing in front of a bearded man and five dwarfs. The original hangs in the National Gallery, Sydney.

The manager of the Action Hotel, Mr E. J. Parker, has written to Dr Hyde and told him to remove the print from his room, which because it was serviced, was semi-public.

Dr Hyde replied that the only service the room received was from a maid who looked after it.

The Canberra manager of Commonwealth Hostels Limited, Mr E. K. Hodges who will later investigate the controversy, said many people had complained about the print.—China Mail Special.

STEREOPHONIC PICNIC HI-FI

San Francisco, June 4. The first stereophonic hi-fi that you can take on a picnic was demonstrated here on Wednesday by a Japanese firm.

The Japanese company showed off the machines, which it hopes to sell widely in the American market, at a demonstration in San Francisco's Chinatown.

The phonographs, radio-phonographs and tape recorders use transistors instead of tubes and are powered by flashlight batteries.

The "picnic hi-fi" comes in a compact case no larger than a young lady's overnight bag. Two speakers extend on cords to provide the necessary stereophonic separation.

It is expected to retail in this country for about $85. It carries a 90-day guarantee.—UPI.

As I See The Talks

BIG DECISION?

From JOHN EARLE

Geneva, June 4.

An important decision affecting the future of the East-West talks may come from next week's meetings in Moscow between the leaders of the Soviet Union and East Germany.

Though both East and West have during the three weeks of conference got down to serious business and edged towards each other in some respects, there was still no sign of a "break-through" towards real agreement.

In fact the latest private sessions of the East-West Foreign Ministers appeared to show that both sides are standing on their positions and not giving an inch.

Today's private meeting, though held in a good atmosphere, was believed to have been fruitless, with unproductive discussion on a possible free city of West Berlin and Western access to it.

The feeling was apparent in conference circles that the conference had got as far as it could for the moment.

In view of Western Ministers' refusal to come out with any substantial concessions in the last few days, observers thought the Russians and East Germans faced the following choice of decisions:

Summit Whether to try to draw up with the West the present areas of agreement and disagreement in a document to be submitted to the summit conference which, it is commonly assumed, will take place later this summer.

• Whether to go on haggling away at present in an effort to outline an acceptable Berlin settlement.

• Whether to make substantial concessions towards the Western point of view, which would make the holding of a summit conference certain and facilitate the heads of government's task of reaching a settlement.

The contact between the Soviet and East German delegations here is close and the two Foreign Ministers, Mr Andrei Gromyko and Dr Lothar Bots, hold meetings almost daily.

A Communist source said next week's Moscow talks "would not take steps which would endanger the Geneva conference."

Observers took this to mean the Soviet and East German leaders were not preparing to increase tension or to make threats.

Nibbling

In their private talks here the East and West Foreign Ministers are reported to agree that West Berlin may be called a "free city."

They are both regarded as nibbling at ideas for East-West commissions to be set up in Berlin.

Their main points of disagreement, in the view of observers, are:

• The presence of Soviet forces. Mr Gromyko wants to introduce them into West Berlin under his proposal for "token" forces of the Big Four Powers.

• Mr Gromyko says the occupation status of the forces in West Berlin must be abolished. But the Western powers reject this and say the right of occupation is the legal basis on which their forces are in West Berlin and it can normally only be abolished in a peace treaty.

• The Western ministers appear not to be satisfied that military and civilian access to West Berlin would not be guaranteed and have been reported as trying to pin down Mr Gromyko to "more acceptable guarantees."—UPI.

Steel, 40, was held in jail pending his court appearance. On December 15, 1950, Steel was arrested on a similar charge and was bailed out of jail by Miss Ekberg. The couple were divorced last month.—UPI.

Russian Sub Seen In Atlantic

Washington, June 4. A Russian submarine recently was sighted in the North Atlantic about 150 to 200 miles south of Iceland, the Navy said today.

It said the craft, which was on the surface at the time, was sighted by the submarine USS Grenadier and a Navy patrol plane, both of which were engaged in exercises.

The report placed the sub far from the United States and near what are considered normal Soviet maneuvering areas.

The Navy, which issued the statement in response to queries, was unable to say what kind of submarine was involved or whether it appeared to be a missile-firing type.

The Navy has said it believed the Russians may have started to equip some submarines with missiles of the pilotless aircraft type.—UPI.

Rioters Buried

GRANDFATHER ENDS NON-STOP 7,658-MILE FLIGHT

Los Angeles, June 4. Grandfather Max Conrad today set a non-stop record for single-engine planes when he brought his Piper Comanche down at International Airport 7,658 miles from his take-off point at Casablanca.

The 86-year-old professional ferry pilot landed at 2:47 p.m. He had officially broken the single-engine record when he passed El Paso, Texas.

"I feel fine," Conrad said as he climbed from his plane into the waiting arms of customs and immigration officers. "It's nice and cool here."

Conrad sat on the wing of his plane while officials checked the plane. He said he had plenty of gasoline left.

"For a while I was thinking of flying on to San Francisco," he said.

He did not appear overly tired but did show some signs of his long trip.—UPI.

"Tibet Society" Formed

London, June 4. Friends of Tibet and people who have had connections with India, China or Tibet today formed a "Tibet Society" with the object of giving "expression to the widespread interest and deep concern aroused in this country (Great Britain) by recent events in Tibet."

The preparatory meeting, held today under the chairmanship of the British author Mr F. N. Busoni-Palmer, decided to call a public meeting on July 8 when the full objects of the society will be explained to the public and in all probability an appeal will be launched for funds to help the Tibetan refugees now in India.

The preparatory meeting decided to enlist support among members of Parliament, political parties, business circles and other organizations for the work of the society.

The main purposes of the society will be "not to allow what has happened in Tibet to be forgotten," to send financial and other assistance to Tibetan refugees and to render assistance to the Dalai Lama "in whatever ways possible."—UPI.

What is the TRUTH about Monty and Berlin?

NEED there ever have been a Berlin problem? Could anyone have averted that huge cold shadow which still hangs over the prospect of Summit talks, over the whole peace of the world?

Increasingly, one familiar clipped voice has been giving its own answer to these questions in recent months.

"Certainly the shadow could have been averted," the voice has implied. "Certainly the Berlin problem could have been solved at the very beginning. IF ONLY MY ADVICE HAD BEEN TAKEN."

The voice belongs, of course, to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

The field marshal has suggested that if he had been given his way during the last stages of the war in Europe in 1945, he would have gone right to Berlin. Guilty, the U.S.A.

Ambassador to Britain.

And then how different all might have been in the European scene, both at the time and ever since!

Just to suppose that Monty had seized the capital of Germany and held it. There would have been no problem of supplying Free Berlin. No airlift crisis. No possibility of a Russian blockade.

But American researchers have recently been looking into the unpublished records of the time.

And the results of this meticulous research are remarkably different from the Montgomery version.

Talks began

The researchers have shown that the partition of Germany had been decided as early as the New Year 1944.

This had been done at a certain meeting held at Lancaster House, St James's, by a party of Allied political experts. They formed the European Advisory Commission (E.A.C.).

The British member of this body was Sir William Strang, and the British Foreign Office, and the other members were Mr John G. Winant, the United States Ambassador to London, who acted as chairman, and Mr Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, the U.S.A.

Ambassador to Britain.

The E.A.C. began its talks on January 14, 1944. It was on the second day that Britain put forward the plan for the partition of Germany, which still stands to this hour.

Russia presented the same general scheme—though there had been no previous collaboration.

Briefly, it proposed that Berlin should be occupied by the three Big Allied Powers, through the area surrounding the city was to be entirely in the hands of the Russians. A corridor into Berlin from the West was provided for.

Germany itself was to be split into three zones, similarly allocated. The Western part of the country was to be shared between Britain and the U.S. (North and South Zones). The Eastern part was to be Russia's.

It was at this point that differences arose.

The British wanted the aforementioned military zoning, primarily to keep the Russians away from the English Channel. Should they be able to storm through so far?

Remember, that at this time, January 1944, the Normandy landings were still six months ahead.

So Britain claimed that, after victory, the North Zone of Western Germany should pass into her hands. This included the Kiel Canal and the great harbours of Hamburg and Bremen. We proposed that the South Zone should go to the United States.

But the Americans promptly insisted that the North Zone should be theirs! Both the great Atlantic Powers, in fact, were after that very valuable port of Hamburg on the North Sea.

The Russians did not want any at any rate, hope to get control of any part of that North Sea shore. So Mr Gruenau took in silence, and returned while Sir William Strang and Mr Winant fought it out.

It was then that President Roosevelt conceived the idea that the Anglo-American Zones in the West should stretch right up to Berlin. (This was on February 26, 1944.) But it appears that this was never tabled by Mr Winant at the E.A.C. representative.

For Mr Winant's own thought was that, in order to make future negotiations easier, the Americans must teach Russia to trust them even if the British put their throats cut in the process.

Said Winant, in effect: "If we put this (Roosevelt's plan) forward, it will offend the Russians—because the Russians and the British have already put their plan forward."

Gave way

On April 3, 1944, President Roosevelt gave way—and accepted the British-Russian plan. And in September, at their meeting in Quebec, he and Winston Churchill argued out the terms.

On November 14, 1944, the three occupation Zones of this Germany yet to be partitioned were fixed by the Tripartite Agreement. (There was still not even a word about any corridor to Berlin from the West.)

And quarrelling continued about these North Sea harbours. In the end, Britain did get control of them, by conceding the rights of free ports to the Americans.

At the Yalta Conference, in February 1945, the Zone argument was finally settled, the French acquiring a share in the Anglo-American one. (But no arrangement even now for access to Berlin.)

Conclusive

Such is the beginning of the Berlin story as charted by the researchers.

Unlike Montgomery, they show how conclusively the matter had been settled by E.A.C. long before the surrender on Lameburg Heath.

Yet Montgomery knew all about E.A.C. He mentions E.A.C. in his memoirs. Strang was later his own chief political adviser.

We must assume, therefore, that Montgomery had always known about E.A.C.'s big decision. As Commander-in-chief of the British Forces in Europe it would have been odd if he had not known about them soon after they were made.

London.

I AM back in Britain for the first time in 10 years. I remember the day I sailed down the Thames from Tilbury with my wife and two daughters—they were nine and five—bound for the other side of the world.

It was the Britain of the Berlin blockade. There was little work in my next suit (I got it at a multiple tailor's in Oxford Street, made to measure for £10) and as we went on board my children clutched paper bags of chocolates that used up in one light-hearted shopping fling all the ration "points" we had been hoarding so carefully.

Churchill's view about this was very definite. It was this: "At any rate, don't withdraw a yard until we have sorted out our differences with the Russians!"

If Churchill had held on to this view it might have offered an opportunity which certainly has never recurred.

In a telegram to Roosevelt on April 11 he urged:

"I therefore consider that from a political standpoint we should move as far east as possible."

Germany as possible, and that should Berlin be in our grasp you should certainly take it. This also appears sound on military grounds."

No answer came from Roosevelt. On April 12 he died.

Churchill tried to raise the question again with his successor, President Truman, but without avail.

The American troops were halted on the River Elbe, waiting for the Russians to reach Berlin. And the British troops advanced no further either. For this we can thank E.A.C. agreement."

WOMANSENSE

YOUR BIRTHDAY ... By STELLA

FRIDAY, JUNE 5

BORN today, you have been given by the stars, confirming compatibility of character and abilities. They will make your life one of action, counteraction; progress and regression; tremendous glamour and intermittent tragedy. In other words, you have a great talent and a tempestuous temperament. Whether you can develop the former and curb the latter is entirely up to you. You are, more than many, master of your own fate!

But no matter what else, your life will never be dull. You are a fine organizer, yet you detect details. You are a good judge of character, yet you are easily influenced and even sometimes fooled because of misplaced affections. There is a wide streak of common sense in your nature, yet you have a horror of the insect world and are incurably intrigued by the bizarre.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Today's new moon places emphasis on personal affairs. Many of the things of which you have been dreaming come true now.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Concentrate on cultural matters for the next month. You can advance your position accordingly.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Hold to your purpose and let nothing deter you from reaching your goal. Hard work does it!

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—This can be a good time to deal with the public and achieve some major objective that way.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—A good weekend for relaxation and enjoyment of your friends. There's no special hurry today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 21-Nov. 22)—The two major trends of your life will be affected by what transpires in the next four weeks.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

HERE is another hand from my indefatigable correspondent Milton Unger of New York.

As usual we find Milton in there bidding his cards to the hill and a little further but with reasonably good results.

The play of the hand at six diamonds doubled was short and sweet. West took his ace and king of clubs and South took the rest of the tricks. Down one with 150 honours; a mighty cheap save against the sure five spade contract.

Milton points out that West could have bought the hand if he had opened with five spades and I agree, but also have no criticism for West's opening two bid and nothing but admiration for Milton's gallant action agains it.

Merlin's Brand-New Game

—The Shadows Couldn't Play It Without Him—

By MAX TRELL

"I WISH," said Knarf, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-Around Name, to his sister Handi, "that we had a new kind of game to play."

"Yes," agreed Handi, "that's what I wish, too. Look at how hard it's raining. We can't play any of our old games like tag or hide-and-seek."

"I'd like a brand-new game," said Knarf.

Big Smile

Just then, there was a noise from behind the bookcase. Out walked Mr Merlin, the Magnificent Magician. He had a big smile on his face.

"Good morning, my dear," he said. "How would you like to play a new game?"

"Oh, Mr Merlin!" cried Handi, as she threw her arms around the Magician's neck and gave him a hug. "That's what we were talking about!"

"What kind of a game is it?" asked Knarf.

"It's called 'Catch-Me-If-You-Can,'" said Mr Merlin. Immediately, Knarf and Handi begged Mr Merlin to show them how to play this new game which he said was called "Catch-Me-If-You-Can."

"Well," began Mr Merlin, "it's really quite simple. Everybody who plays this game is allowed to change himself into any kind of an animal he wants to be. Whoever is smallest tries to run away. The others try to catch him. Here! Try to catch me!"

As he said this, Mr Merlin changed into a mouse and scurried across the floor.

The next second, Knarf and Handi changed into two cats. They started chasing after the mouse. Just as they were about to pounce on the mouse at the other end of the room, the mouse changed into a dog.

"Well," began Mr Merlin, "it's really quite simple. Everybody who plays this game is allowed to change himself into any kind of an animal he wants to be. Whoever is smallest tries to run away. The others try to catch him. Here! Try to catch me!"

As he said this, Mr Merlin changed into a mouse and scurried across the floor.

The two cats turned and raced away as the dog bounded after them, barking at the top of his voice.

"Oh, what a wonderful game!" Handi said to Knarf.

Just as the dog was about to leap on the cats, the two cats changed into two kangaroos. They whirled around and chased the dog. The dog ran with all his might as the kangaroos bounded after him.

Then the dog changed into a lion and chased the kangaroos.

Then the kangaroos changed into elephants and chased the lion.

"Now we've got him," thought Knarf and Handi, as they crowded the frightened lion into the farthest corner of the room. "There's not any place he can go!"

But Mr Merlin, the Magnificent Magician, fooled them. He changed himself into a butterfly and went fluttering behind the bookcase.

The two "elephants" jumped and pushed and jostled and bumped against each other and fell down in a heap, but they both remained exactly what they were: small girl and a small boy.

And from a far-off corner of the ceiling of the room, they heard a little voice. It was Mr Merlin. They knew it was Mr Merlin, but they couldn't even see him.

"I'll play the game with you tomorrow!" Handi said to Knarf, smiling.

The Cat got ready to pounce on the Mouse.

"Let's play it again, even though Mr Merlin isn't here."

But, alas, though Handi tried with might and main to change herself into a chicken and Knarf tried as hard as he could to change himself into a fox, they both remained exactly what they were: small girl and a small boy.

And from a far-off corner of the ceiling of the room, they heard a little voice. It was Mr Merlin. They knew it was Mr Merlin, but they couldn't even see him.

"I'll play the game with you tomorrow!" Handi said to Knarf, smiling.

"After" Make-Up Magic A Woman Looks Prettier

Tussey Cosmetics

HAVE LIGHT LASHES? Use mascara to darken them. Eyes look prettier "after" an application than they did "before."

"A RE those before and after pictures you see in beauty ads for real?" queries a reader.

"Is it possible that the glamour girl of the 'after' photograph could have looked so awful in the 'before' picture?"

That's a good question.

Sometimes "before" pictures are exaggerated to make a point. More often than not, however, they're "real."

MAGIC IN MINUTES

Naturally, light lashes are a drawback. Eyes need outline and contrast to show their sparkle. That's why the more application of mascara can make a most tremendous change—and for the better.

Eyebrow pencil, when needed, is another miracle worker.

Eyebrows tend to droop, providing they're well-shaped.

THE RIGHT COIFFURE

Perhaps the one thing that improves appearances most drastically is the right coiffure. The wrong hairdo can make a full face appear fatter, a thin face look gaunt. It can focus attention on a prominent nose, a square-cut jaw, a high forehead.

Did she use cosmetics "before"? Of course; what woman doesn't? She just didn't know how to apply them to play up her good features, tone down her bad ones.

EYE MAKE-UP

Eye make-up is responsible for some of those most dramatic "after" changes. No woman can be truly beautiful unless her eyes are lovely, and to be lovely they need emphasis.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Don't try to use a deep chair or table in a narrow part of a room or hallway. Shallow tables, chairs and benches will leave the area looking much larger, save tripping.

Always try to see a prospective carpet purchase in your own home before you buy it. That's the only way you can be sure it will complement your other furnishings.

Reheating leftover Brussels sprouts is no problem when you cook with soup. Heat 1 cup of cream of chicken soup thinned with 1/2 cup milk. Toss with 8 cups of cooked Brussels sprouts and 1/2 cup grated American or cheddar cheese. Turn out lightly greased 1/2-quart casserole. Top with 1 cup buttered bread cubes and bake 20 minutes or until crumbs are brown in preheated 375-degree oven.

To clean felt baby shoes, remove cardboard inner soles and laces, and wash shoes gently in lukewarm soap or detergent. Squeeze ribbon ties through clean sticks. Rinse and blot moisture with a towel. Stretch babies gently into shape and insert inner soles. When dry, brush felt to restore fluffiness.

Store garden tools by sticking them in a tray or box of sand mixed with a small amount of crank case oil. The mixture cleans the tools and keeps them rust free.

Use pipe cleaners to close plastic freezer bags. The cleaners will not break in freezing temperatures.

Tommy Greenhough Is England's New Test Spinner

By ALEX BANNISTER

Tommy Greenhough, of Lancashire, this week became the first leg-spinner to be picked for an England cricket team since Doug Wright. Greenhough, whose final action immediately reminds one of Wright, is one of three new comers in the side now playing against India in the first Test at Nottingham.

The other two were expected choices. They are Ken Taylor, Yorkshire's opening batsman and Huddersfield footballer, who will be Milton's new partner, and Martin Horton, the Worcestershire batsman and off-break bowler.

Until this season of dry and covered pitches Greenhough was uncertain of his place in Lancashire's attack.

He began the season with 100 first-class wickets in a career which started in 1951, including only 24 last year. Now the door of fame is wide open to him.

Prediction

I remember watching him when he was 10, bowling to the 1948 Australians at the Old Trafford. Arthur Morris told me he thought one day Tommy would play for England. It has taken 11 years for Arthur's prediction to come true.

Greenhough's progress was seriously retarded by an accident at a printing works in which he broke both ankles. Now he is reaching the age at which leg-spinners come into their own.

Ken Taylor also has a golden chance, for runs against India means a trip to the Caribbean.

Taylor puts cricket first and he has yet to re-sign for Huddersfield. The tour is worth not less than £450, with £50

Prevents Batting Collapse At 60 For Three With A Century Knock

Nottingham, June 4.
Led by a sparkling century by their captain Peter May, England recovered from an early collapse to score 358 for six wickets on the opening day of the first Test against India here today.

England who won the toss and batted first on a fast true pitch crashed to a shock 60 for three—and faced complete humiliation against a team rated here as no more than moderate opposition for England's top cricketers.

But May swung the game with a brilliantly-hit 100—his first century against the Indians. Ken Barrington, May's Surrey team-mate, made 58 and joined him in a face-saving fourth-wicket stand of 94. Then Godfrey Evans with a 73 in 55 minutes and Martin Horton with a solid 58 not out completed the recovery.

Horton, another Test newcomer, played an innings of immense value. Content to play second fiddle to the galloping Evans he showed immaculate defence and, after Evans' departure, clocked attack. His 50 came in just over two hours and included five fours.—Reuters.

Heartening

But India's display was heartening after their unimpressive showings against the Countries. Keen determined bowling backed up by improving fielding took them to the point of a complete breakthrough—and only the world-class batting of May turned the tide.

Surendra Nath helped a little by an atmosphere which encouraged some swing struck the first surprise blows. He sent Arthur Milton and then captured the valuable wicket of Colin Cowdrey.

Leg-spinner Gupta followed up by trapping opener Ken Thyre, one of England's three new comers.

This was the extent of the Indians' success march. May and Barrington, cautious at first Tom Clark playing in his first county championship match for the season, hit a 94 in helping champion Surrey to gain a first innings lead of 138 over Worcestershire at the Oval.

Best Bowling

At the close, Worcestershire led by only 62 runs with four wickets left. So tomorrow's second-wicket win in six championship games played so far.

Best bowling performance of the day was made by Don Shepherd of Glamorgan who took six Sussex second-innings wickets for 71.

Worcestershire captain Mike Smith, a rugby international, pulled Kent under-par Colen Page for two wickets in three balls while hitting an entering 52 at Tunbridge Wells.

Closing Scores

Close of play scores in today's cricket matches were:

At the Oval: Worcestershire—09 and secondly 198 for six (D. Phipsey 67, R. Wilson 67 not out). Surrey—238 (T. Clarke 64).

but later brilliantly aggressive, stayed together for almost two and a half hours and when Barrington fell just before tea the real danger was past.

Grand slam Knock

Barrington's 50 included two sixes, tremendous straight drives off successive balls from Bardsley and six fours.

May's three wickets in 100 minutes and three hours and hit 18 fours. His century was his 13th in Tests and the 7th of his career.

May's exit was the signal for the day's brightest batting—a grand slam knock by Godfrey Evans who at 38 is the oldest player in the side—was playing in his 50th Test.

His arrival coincided with the taking of the new ball, but it made no difference to gay Godfrey. Slamming at almost everything and smacking the most impish of singles, he raced to 50 in 45 minutes. When he left, after scoring 73 of the 100 runs produced by his stand with Horton, he had hit 12 flashing fours and England were in an unassassable position.

Setback For League-Leading Braves

CEPEDA DRIVES IN SEVEN RUNS TO PACE GIANTS TO 11-5 VICTORY

New York, June 4.

Orlando Cepeda, the National League's rookie of the year in 1958, drove in seven runs today as the San Francisco Giants beat the Milwaukee Braves 11-5 and cut the losers' first-place lead to  $2\frac{1}{2}$  games.

Cepeda drove in five of the runs with a pair of homers and also hit a double and a single to pace the Giants' 15-hit attack on eight-game winner Lew Burdette and two successors. It was the first time the Giants beat Burdette since 1954.

Cepeda homered to cut an early Milwaukee lead to 5-3 in the fourth, hit a three-run homer in the fifth and shamed the die-hard double in the eighth. Cepeda's second homer cleared the left field bleachers—the first such drive since the Braves moved to Milwaukee in 1953.

Jim Davenport had three hits and Willie Mays, Daryl Spencer and Hobie Landrith two each for the Giants, who split the four-game series with the National League Champs.

Cards Routed

Bill Virdon's two-run homer and Bill Mazeroski's two-run triple paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-3 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals in the other National League afternoon game. Ron Kline yielded 13 hits but won his fifth game. It was the Pirates' 12th victory in 15 games.

Chicago was at Philadelphia and Los Angeles at Cincinnati in night games.

Win For Yankees

In the American League Hector Lopez, acquired from Kansas City in a recent deal, knocked in four runs with a homer and a double to lead the New York Yankees to a 10-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The win, the world champion's seventh in their last 10 games, put the Yankees within one percentage of the sixth-place Tigers.

Whitey Ford struck out six, walked four and yielded seven hits in registering his sixth triumph against three losses.

Ford also drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run double. Ten of the Yankees' 15 hits were extra bases.

Frank Bolling homered for the Tigers who saw five-game winner Jim Bunning routed in three binnings by six hits, good for seven runs.

Longest Game

Earl Torgeson homered with two in the 17th inning to lift the Chicago White Sox to a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles and into first place in the American League. It was the longest game played in the Majors this year.

Torgeson hit a 1-1 pitch by Jerry Walker, third Baltimore pitcher into the third row of seats to end the four-hour-and-37-minute game in which the White Sox used 21 players and the Orioles 18. There were 5 total of eight errors, including five by Baltimore.

Gary Geiger hit a two-run single and a solo homer as the Boston Red Sox beat the Kansas City Athletics 5-2. In the only other game of day or night, Jerry Casale went the distance with a seven-hitter to win his third game for the Red Sox.

Olympic Standards Are Unreasonable

By DEREK JOHN

I wonder if the rulers of international athletics were ever given geography lessons at school and taught that different countries have different climates.

They are either ignorant of this or consider it quite unimportant. Or so it would seem from a list issued recently of qualifying standards for the athletic events in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome.

These standards apply to athletes in all countries regardless of local conditions.

The idea is to limit the number of competitors and it will certainly succeed. So high is the standard demanded that many countries will have only one competitor in each event.

They can only nominate a second or third competitor if they have achieved the necessary standard. But why should some countries be given an advantage in certain events?

K. O. Competitions?

For instance, it's a recognised fact that a sprinter can achieve faster times in California than he can in Cambridge. Similarly, it's far easier to achieve the 1,500 metres standard (3 mins 45 secs) in Dublin than in Durban.

Now I don't expect the legislators to work out different standards for each country. That could lead to all kinds of anomalies.

The number of Olympic athletes must be reduced, then competitors should be reduced by knock-out competitions in the various zones similar to the method used to decide the sixteen countries in the Olympic Soccer Tournament.

Fraser, Santana In Barcelona Tennis Final

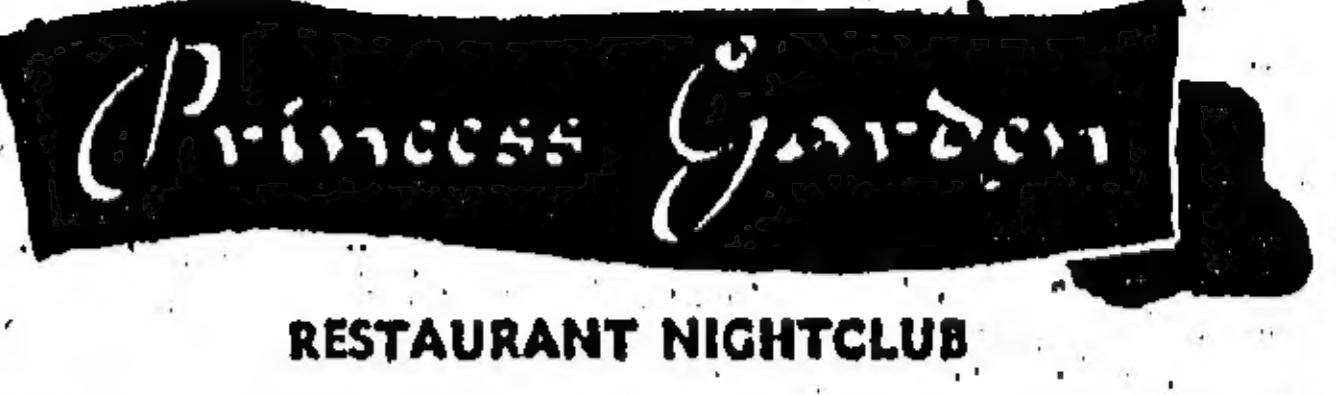

Barcelona, June 4. Australia's Neel Fraser and Spain's Manuel Santana moved into the final of the "Conde De Godo" international tennis tournament here today by defeating South Africans Gordon Forbes and Abe Segal in quarter-final play.

Fraser had to come from behind in a six-set match to beat Segal by 2-6, 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, and 6-1.

In elimination-round doubles Ken Fletcher of Australia and Alberto Arilla of Spain beat A. and E. Martinez of Spain 6-2, 6-2.

Los Ayala of Chile and Rod Laver of Australia beat Ian Vermaak and Ray Verdon of South Africa by 4-6, 6-2, 7-6.

In this match the South African team started with a hard attacking game that won them the first set, but their opponents caught the tempo in the second and third sets and went on to win.—UPI.

headmaster
Prince resignsAT A TIME OF SPREADING INFLUENCE FOR THE CULT...

PRINCE Georg Wilhelm of Hanover, brother-in-law to Prince Philip, has resigned his post as headmaster of Salem, Germany's controversial spartan public school. Prince Georg is now on a visit to England, staying at Buckingham Palace.

Though he has made no announcement of his resignation, I gather he decided to leave Salem before he arrived in England two weeks ago.

And ironically enough, as the news reached me from Germany, the retired headmaster was just completing an inspection visit to the Outward Bound school at Llanberis Bridge, Dolgellau, Bala, and the Snowdonia mountains.

Said Lady Lewisham (taking herself very seriously): "It is a disgrace to London. We see it often.

"My own two brothers, Ian McQuaigdale, who is 21, and Glenn, 19, who know the facts of life, have been told by my mother (Barbara Cartland) to train a tough aristocratic elite, which he helped develop at Salem, has been gaining all the success that the founder could desire.

Speaking from his study at Salem School, new headmaster Baron Axel von dem Busche, 40, said: "The prince, who is preparing for a world-wide trip to schools similar to Salem, including Gordonstoun in Scotland,"

"It's high time London removed the prostitutes from the streets of Mayfair and set up red light houses," she said. "That would be one solution."

Delving further into family research into the problem, Lady Lewisham explained that only recently, her mother, following a visit to the footsteps of that other social pioneer, Dr Edith Summerskill, had been out East having a first hand look at the more notorious streets.

"In Bombay, they have their red light districts and the men who visit those districts know what they are seeking."

But it seems strange that such a young man, so well placed and successful, should resign when he is still displaying such keen interest in the Kurt Hahn educational experiment.

I couldn't help thinking of the way in which this Hahn school network is to be expanded. Of the proposal for a new series of "Atlantic Colleges" to be set up on the Salem pattern throughout the Nato countries.

Who is to direct the organisation of these schools? Who is to be the world-wide master? My tip for you all: Prince Georg Wilhelm of Hanover, ex-headmaster of Salem.

U.S. answer to Annigoni?

NEW face appeared in the Princess Margaret Set one day recently at the Pied Piper Ball.

I recognise him as the American artist Reba Bouche, a dapper little man who is rapidly earning the title of America's answer to Annigoni, though I don't know whether or not he approves of the tag.

Mr. Bouche, a naturalised
American born in Czechoslovakia of French and Hungarian parentage, is in London to paint the famous and the famous daughters of those whose names appear in Debrett.

But at the ball he was "off parade." He was included in the party of 12 that attended the Pied Piper Ball at Hyde Park Hotel—the party held annually to aid the funds of the N.S.P.C.C., of which Princess
Margaret is president.

So that we began to ask: "Is Judy's Roman holiday at an end?"

Not so. Judy is here to see her bankers. She has so fallen in love with the Tiber that she has decided to buy the lease of her flat in Mayfair.

number of well-known people
and their families. Mrs. Ward did not know whether the
Princess would be sitting for
Mr. Bouche.

Before going to the ball the Princess dined at the home of Colonel and Mrs. John Ward. So too did Mr. Bouche.

I asked about Mr. Bouche.

Mrs. Ward said: "He is quite famous over there, he is known to be in London to paint a number of well-known people
and their families." Mrs. Ward
did not know whether the
Princess would be sitting for
Mr. Bouche.

Murder Trial In Closing Stages

Prosecuting and defending counsel in the Supreme Court today began their final addresses in a case in which a man is alleged to have stabbed a woman to death with a screwdriver.

Drug Possession

AIRLINE EMPLOYEES CHARGED

Maithi Atising, 26, a Thai national and airline employee, charged with dealing in dangerous drugs and possession of morphine, told Judge H. H. B. How in Kowloon District Court this morning he did not know the nature and composition of the "white blocks" found by a fellow-countryman.

Atising is jointly charged with Thayayon Supasarn, 29, also that employed by an airline, and Cheng Yee, 29, a book-stall assistant.

Atising said he had not been told of the finding of the white blocks by Supasarn. He had learned of it, he said, when Supasarn was relating the incident to Cheng, and asking Cheng to sell them for him.

TO BOOKSTALL

He then added, he did not know the nature or composition of the white blocks. Continuing, he said that on March 31, the day of their arrest, he went to the book-stall to see Cheng at Supasarn's request.

When they met, Cheng suggested they go to a coffee shop. Arriving there, he was introduced, he said, to two women. One was the unidentified police witness, Mrs. X, and the other the woman police sergeant in plain clothes.

After a short discussion Cheng Yee said they should engage a room at the Carnarvon Hotel, so they all went there. A short while later, he left the hotel room and returned with Supasarn.

The case is continuing.

Hon. ADC

Fl. Lt. D. A. Stevenson, RAF, has been appointed an Honorary ADC, the Government Gazette notified today.

The man, Ng Yin, 40, unemployed, has pleaded not guilty to murdering Yau Man-wai, in Poo Mei New Village, Kowloon, on November 24 last year.

The prosecution alleges he stabbed the woman 60 times.

Not Sufficient

Mr. D. Rea, Crown Counsel, told the jury today that they could rule out provocation as a defense.

"If someone is so provoked that they lose their reason and attack someone, the crime of murder may be reduced to manslaughter," he said.

"But words alone are not sufficient provocation."

Mr. Rea said another point the defense had failed was that Ng was confused.

"For confusion to amount to a defense, the accused has to be insane," Mr. Rea said.

"There is no suggestion that Ng is insane."

He said that there was no obligation on the Crown to prove a motive for murder.

Your Duty

He told the jury: "Your proper duty is to return a verdict of guilty of murder against Ng."

Mr. Oswald Cheung, for Ng, began his closing address.

Mr. Cheung is instructed by Mr. William Wong, of M. K. Lam & Co.

Effie Tjoa A Beautiful Singer

By ERNST GOTTSCHALK

A LARGE audience gave an Indonesian soprano Effie Tjoa last night at the King's Theatre a very friendly reception. Deservedly, for Miss Tjoa is a singer whose personal beauty and charm endear her to her public, and whose voice has an exquisite bloom, sensual and feminine.

Miss Tjoa's voice is not a large one, but her top notes ring out bright and clear, and the middle and lower ranges acquire occasionally an appealing mezzo-soprano-like timbre.

Her voice is well-placed and one would say that she has an excellent technique, were it not for a habit to let the voice suddenly and ever so often drop to a mere whisper. It was not quite clear if Miss Tjoa uses this device actually a mannerism, or for interpretative reasons, or if she uses it in order to save strength.

If she has acquired the mannerism because of interpretative reasons, she should rid herself of it quickly, because she has enough personality and charm that she could easily do without it.

During the first part of the recital, where she sang Italian and a Handelian aria and German lieder, Miss Tjoa used a more sustained tone level, while her mannerism became more pronounced during the second part which was devoted to Indonesian, Chinese and Dutch folksongs, some Negro spirituals, and two modern Indonesian art songs.

As a matter of fact, during the second part Miss Tjoa showed definite signs of strain and though she tried hard to sing her parting encore, an Indonesian farewell song, with a greater volume of tone, she could not regain the power she had shown with "Carissima's 'Vittoria'" with which she had so promisingly started her evening.

One outstanding characteristic of the singer, however, should not pass unnoticed. That is her clear enunciation and her linguistic gifts. Her pronunciation of the Italian and German words was remarkably correct and I believe that goes for the Dutch and Chinese texts.

Her interpretations were always tasteful and correct in respect to style. Those groups on her programme where lyric sentiments were expressed, were conveyed by her with telling charm and especially the confidential sweetness of "Vergleichliches Ständchen" by Brahms suited the personality of the singer.

Miss Tjoa was accompanied at the piano by her younger sister, Jenny Tjoa. She adjusted herself to every whim and inclination of the singer with great sympathy. Indeed the sympathy was not only the natural one between sisters, but one of two congenial artists, a feature which contributed much to the happy result of the evening.

The recital was sponsored by the Music Society.

Crown Rents Payable

The Government Gazette notified today that Crown rents for the half year ending on June 24, 1959, were payable at the Treasury on or before July 14.

The Gazette further notified that unless payment was made by July 14, legal action for recovery or re-entry may be instituted without further warning.

Kept Hidden

As the festival approaches, the dogs are fattened, in preparation for the big meal. They are also kept hidden, as the practice is illegal.

Six years ago dogs belonging to a number of prominent residents were found hidden in nullahs and drains near Aberdeen and Kowloon City, a district well-known for this practice.

The Hongkong Office of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals loudly protested against the practice for many years before it was declared illegal.

Their main claim against the practice at that time was the method of killing the dog. First it was stretched out and strangled. Then its throat was slit, the operculum being followed by clubbing.

Bought Two

Mr. H. M. Howell, Secretary of the RSPCA said that more than 100 had come to a dog shop in town, and bought two puppies which were being fattened, for $10 each.

$15 FINE

Mrs. B. Corrie Hill, of No. 10 Hillcrest, The Peak, who pleaded guilty to causing obstruction was fined $15 by Mr. Q. C. Lim at Central Magistrate this morning.

On March 24, defendant parked her car outside No. 72-A Queen's Road Central and left it unattended from 4 p.m. to 4.40 p.m.

This caused obstruction, said Sub-Inspector S. W. Ng, who prosecuted.

The Police applied to Mr. I. T. Morris at Central Juvenile Court this morning for an order for a 10-year-old Eurasian boy to be placed under their care and protection.

The application stated that the boy, whose guardian was unfit to exercise care and guardianship, was falling into bad associations and beyond control.

As the boy was not present in Court this morning, Mr. Morris adjourned the case to next Monday.
